* Adjusted treatment was defined as at least one of the following since study enrollment:

- A prescription for a standard dose of an established first-line treatment for depression/GAD/PD –or–
- Referral to evidence-based psychotherapy (either outside mental health provider, with specific provider and appointment date, or planned use of CBT workbook in the CC arm).
- For patients who were admitted while already taking first-line pharmacotherapy at a stable dose (or in evidence-based psychotherapy for their disorder) for at least 4 weeks but who met criteria for the disorder on hospital admission, adjusted treatment would require dose increase, augmentation, switch of agents, or addition of psychotherapy.
